Subject: Re: EOCCG Update 5: Planned Truck Demonstration

Thanks.

Tanya will be monitoring email to send on Kim's behalf. I will be logged off but will keep my phone close.

Caroline and I discussed it and Kim concurs that there isn't enough information for a second Council update today given that we just sent one prior to media avail that just ended. tj

We do plan on another update tonight. We have another SitRep this evening and are finalizing some information related to service impacts. I would anticipate the update being ready in the ballpark of 19:00 to 19:30 hrs.

Any update on whether EOCCG update will be sent today?
Assuming no further update to Council given the one sent just prior to the ongoing media avail...

I will let Andrea comment but I think we should hold off on the update until after the 3pm press avail.
This will allow up to add more substantial information.

Good afternoon,

~~The situation this morning resembles that of yesterday morning.~~ There is currently a small crowd around the area of Confederation Park, approximately 20 people on Parliament Hill, and 100 people on Wellington Street; ~~very few on Parliament Hill.~~ Overnight, Ottawa Police reported isolated incidents of disobedience that were dealt with in a timely manner. The threat level has not changed but Police are seeing that the protesters who are staying in the City are more agitated. For example, any truck that leaves Wellington Street is not allowed to return and the empty spot will not be permitted to be filled. This is a point of contention with the protesters.

In terms of planned events for today, there is no confirmed information although there is still the possibility of a gathering at Confederation Park, and possibly something at the Cenotaph. Parliament is sitting today and a shuttle system is in place to safely move members to Parliament Hill. We can anticipate that this will be a draw for protesters and that they will reconvene on the Hill again today. The gridlock footprint remains in the downtown core. The Alexandra Bridge, Portage Bridge (southbound only) and Chaudière Bridge (southbound only) remain closed. The impact is very high on the traffic flow across the Champlain and Macdonald Cartier Bridges. OC Transpo detours remain in effect. Traffic elsewhere in the city is moving well; however, By-Law are seeing an increase in Requests for Service related to protesters parking on Boulevards and around parklands, which they are addressing.

There are no new City service disruptions to announce this morning. The University of Ottawa is planning in-session learning for today. The Ottawa Carleton District School board announced Centennial Public School will be closed to in-person learning and has moved online for today. The Rideau Centre remains closed today.

Ottawa 3-1-1 has identified an increase in mental health-related calls from residents living in the downtown core. Many are indicating that they have not been able to sleep for the past three days due to the constant use of horns on the part of the protesters. This has been shared with Police. The EOC Councillor Liaison function is also getting some direct outreach related to the City's demobilization planning. The City is working closely with Ottawa Police Service on that and I will be sharing more information with you later today.

We would like to thank you and your service areas for your support as we continue to navigate this event. We will continue to update as the day unfolds.
